“Wells, with the new year now well on its way, it will soon be time for us to gather for the 95th CMSA Convention in beautiful Santa Barbara, Calif. There is nothing like waking up to the sound and smell of the Pacific Ocean just steps away from your room at the Fess Parker’s DoubleTree Resort, located along the California coast. We are living in an ever-changing business environment with the passing of AB 2118, new leadership at the PUC and the continued evolution of CARB. It is vital that we keep up with all those changes if we are to remain compliant and competitive in our respective marketplaces.

The CMSA Convention is packed with information on “best practices,” which is shared by many industry experts, fellow agents and Associate members alike. Our Conventions offer a lineup of the finest speakers from IAM, AMSA, and others who provide us with the most up-to-date information in a variety of business segments in California, our nation and internationally as well.

The real value with our yearly Convention is our members; you all are the very reason we are one of the leading moving industry associations.

If you can’t tell, February has a way of spreading LOVE IN THE AIR, whether it is through gentle reminders or that more in-your-face marketing by retailers with their displays of candies, flowers, cards and who knows what else! How we choose to celebrate Valentine’s Day with our loved ones is a personal choice for each of us. While I too will succumb to some of the marketing tactics that appear everywhere I go, I will also try to find a creative way to show my family that I love them. That gift might come in the way of spending time with them on a simple bike ride, a trip to the movies or even a long walk on the beach without the cell phone. My point is this: Sometimes it takes more than money to show our love. It might just be giving someone the gift of time. More often than not, we know that a strong, stable family life means a strong, stable business life. We know that the key to happiness is finding a way to bring a sense of balance to our life. Often, sadly, I am not the poster child for such balance. It does take a focused effort to avoid becoming too absorbed at times with our work if we aren’t careful. So, however you choose to celebrate Valentine’s Day, make sure that you do it with a true spirit of love for those whom you love.

As we progress into 2013, I’ve noticed a surprisingly steady flow of calls coming into our sales department, requesting moving quotes for all our business lines, which is truly refreshing during the traditionally slow winter months. I recently returned from a three-chapter swing around our state where I had the chance to meet with many CMSA members, who reported positive financial results for 2012. The hope all around is that we see a continued growth in business for those of us striving to achieve the goals we set forth for 2013. We can finally feel as if the recent economic challenges are now behind us. It is now time to set our sights on moving forward with confidence that we are on the way to an economic upswing for most U.S. businesses.

January 31, 2013, ended a second year of the California Air Resources Board (CARB) reporting deadline for all On-Road Diesel Engines operating in California. This process is one that caught some carriers by surprise and left several wondering if they needed to report. My perspective is that CARB, like many regulators, has done a less-than adequate job of outreach to the impacted industry. I have little faith that a company that is not aligned with an Association like CMSA would have enough knowledge to proceed with compliance prior to a costly ... you have reported your fleet if you are taking advantage of any fleet options or have printed out a certificate of compliance for your van line to expedite a possible roadside inspection. There are more CARB deadlines ahead, and recent events have me thinking of the impact on small fleets; this class includes contractors, which are vital to our industry. Small fleets (one to three diesel trucks) that have taken advantage of delays as a result of their reporting to CARB will be required by January 1, 2014, to install an expensive PM filter costing up to $18,000 on one of their trucks or replace their truck(s) with a compliant unit(s). The question that we all need to ask is: What will be the impact of this deadline on our fleets and van line capacity? Transportation in general, and our industry in particular, faces a shortage of drivers. Issues related to CARB regulations, changes in the Hours of Service (HOS) rules and implementation of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration’s Compliance, Safety, Accountability (CSA) program only exacerbates an already difficult challenge. Freight has advantages in hiring over moving for several reasons: the work is less physically demanding, the learning curve is much shorter, and greater volume and turnover has helped to increase hiring efficiencies. With AMSA taking the lead, I am pleased to report that CMSA is also a participant in working to address the driver shortage issue. AMSA has provided SOSC’s gold medal floor hockey team with a trip of a lifetime, competing at the Special Olympics Winter World Games in Korea (January 30 – February 5). It also allows “the organization to grow and offer more life changing opportunities at no cost for all of our athletes from San Diego north to Bakersfield and San Luis Obispo, and the thousands more who haven’t yet experienced what Special Olympics Southern California has to offer,” said Bill Shumard, President and CEO of SOSC. From competition, training programs, and venue rentals to coaches, sporting equipment, uniforms, transportation costs or even meals at competitions, thousands of SOSC athletes will benefit from this campaign. that understands its role in the sales process. We must share plans and goals for our teams to work toward as well as a process for recognizing achievements when goals are reached. We don’t have over-complicate the road to success; instead, just share your expectations with your staff so they feel as if they are pooling their efforts toward a targeted direction.

Having nearly made all my rounds to our CMSA chapters, one thing has struck me deeply about the CMSA members I meet with. I can see that your businesses are not only an important part of your communities by providing the highly needed services to those residents, but so many of you are the very fiber that makes your communities so special. In speaking with many of you, it is clear that your roots run deep into the history of your respective business locations. All this fosters a passion to serve those which you call your own (your communities). As I listened to you describe your memories of growing up in those cities and towns, it was clear to me that those places were home to you for many reasons. Many of you were so kind to invite me into both your business world as well as your personal world by letting me tour your facilities and social clubs. It is moments like these that have given me a deeper appreciation for CMSA; those memories will be the very thing I take away from my experience as your Chairman.

I will close by saying we are truly fortunate to have a group of Associate members who support not only our chapters, but, more importantly, our day-to-day operations. Our companies depend on that support as we set forth to serve our customers. We could not deliver the level of service we all strive for on every move without such support. When called upon to support a chapter event, our Associate members respond with “when” and “where,” followed by their gift of participation. I would love to name each and every one of them in this column for their tireless efforts in providing a level of value to our business, and CMSA, when called upon to do so. Instead, I would ask that we all make an effort to thank them for their continued contributions to support our organizations and our Association. We, in turn, should thank them whenever possible by bringing opportunity their way. Clearly, there is no better way to thank them than by providing

No matter your business, you’re in the business of selling. We know that people make buying decisions emotionally and back them up with logic. We know that people do business with those they like and trust. So, if you want people to do business with you, you must be able to tap into their emotions in a positive way. Do your physical movers, the person in billing and the individual who answers your phone know they are salespeople? They may think they’re in the business of providing a service, but in truth, each member of your company is a vital part of your sales team due to their everyday interactions with your customers. As their fearless leader, are you providing them with the insight, training and encouragement necessary to engage your customers?

Also, how emotionally appealing is your website’s content? Realize that these days women account for 85 percent of all consumer purchases, and 75 percent of women identified themselves as the primary shoppers for their households. Even higher percentages use the Internet for product information before making a purchase. Yet 91 percent of women say that advertisers don’t understand them. And if advertisers—those in the business to get consumers to part with their hard-earned cash—don’t, my question is, do you know how to best emotionally engage your female buyers?

Join me at this year’s 95th Annual CMSA Convention to gain the skills and strategies to move emotions to increase your market share and results!
By: Colette Carlson, Speak Your Truth, Inc.

Not only do you physically move families’ most treasured possessions, commercial equipment or (soon) electronic documents, but every day you move emotions. That’s right – your thoughts, words and actions impact you, your team and your customers. By embracing the following truths, you’ll ensure that your emotions will serve to improve your relationships – and your revenue.

Turn emotion into motion. Spending emotional energy worrying about upcoming legislation, your competition or a bad Yelp! review isn’t going to move you any closer to your goals. Nor am I suggesting you stick your head in the sand and ignore reality. But when you find yourself ruminating or wasting mind time on anything you can’t directly control, it’s time to stop thinking and start doing. Lower your stress by turning emotion into motion.

Concerned about bandit movers? Look for opportunities to educate your customers through articles, blogs or mailings. Role-play with your team and show them how to educate customers to protect themselves. Next time you find yourself stewing, stop and ask, “What action can I take, or what plan can I make that will give me a sense of control?” Go do it.

Go through the emotions with employees. Before you think I’m contradicting myself, let me explain. As owners, we often get comfortable going through the everyday motions and forgetting to engage the emotions of our team. Research shows when people are emotionally invested in their work, they are happier and more productive. Do you know what makes your employees tick? Do you know how they prefer to be rewarded? Do you know their partner’s name or if they have children, and if so, do you ask how they’re doing? Do you stop long enough to show appreciation through specific, genuine feedback, rather than a quick “thanks a lot”? Do you continue to share your vision and stories so they become emotionally invested in your success as well?

How Well Do You Move Emotions?

2013 is the year for CMSA members to consider “Exiting the Comfort Zone,” – which is the theme for our 95th Annual Convention May 14 through 19 at the Fess Parker’s DoubleTree Resort in Santa Barbara, Calif. This year’s theme encourages attendees to think outside of the box and develop new business relations. To help Mover members in this endeavor, the 2013 Convention will provide up-to-date information on issues affecting the moving industry, offer new networking opportunities with suppliers and exploring business diversification strategies for 2013.

The Convention kicks off with the CMSA’s Executive Committee meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday night will be the Movers and Shakers Reception and Dinner – which is an invitation-only event for CMSA Board Members, Chapter Presidents and Committee Members. The Movers and Shakers Reception will be sponsored by Gateways International, Inc., and the dinner will be sponsored by TransGuard General Insurance Co. of America.

On Wednesday, the CMSA standing committees (Insurance Committee, Government Affairs Committee, Membership Committee and Military Affairs Committee) and the Association’s Board of Directors will convene throughout the day. Attendees are welcome to sit-in and learn about industry news during these meetings. The registration desk will open this day, and attendees can begin picking up their registration packets and event tickets. Convention Exhibitors will also have an opportunity to set up their booths early between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.

On Thursday, CMSA members will showcase their golfing talents at the Glen Annie Golf Club for the CMSA Annual Golf Tournament, sponsored by Pioneer. The golf tournament will start with its shotgun at 9:00 a.m. with a $10,000 hole-in-one prize on the ninth hole, sponsored by TransGuard General Insurance Co. of America.

For Exhibitors who don’t golf, the ballroom will be open for them to prepare their booths from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. before the Exhibitors Welcome Reception.

Legislative Analyst

The Legislative Analyst said the Governor’s “emphasis on fiscal discipline and paying off the state’s accumulated budgetary debts is commendable, especially in light of the risks and pressures that the state still faces.”

Among those pressures are uncertainties related to the federal debt discussions, which the Legislative Analyst described as “the key forecast risk now.”

The project has helped to increase revenues to the FTB—double what was expected initially. The FTB expects this program to generate another $4.9 billion through 2017. The FTB predicts an increase of $3 million in personal income tax collection as a result of the enhanced data sharing between FTB and EDD. Proposition 30 is estimated to increase personal income tax collections by ... in 2012-2013; and $4.9 billion in 2013-2014. The increased sales-and-use tax will generate an additional $611 million in 2012-2013 and $1.3 billion in 2013-2014. Proposition 39 is projected to increase corporate tax revenue by $440 million in 2012-2013 and $900 million in 2013-2014. The budget predicts $150 million in 2013-2014 from the use tax on Internet retailers. Alcohol tax revenue is forecasted to decline from $346 million in 2011-2012 to $326 million in 2013-2014 due to a decline in consumption. Also forecasted is a 3.6 percent decline in cigarette tax revenue due to decline in consumption. Statewide property taxes are expected to increase by 1 percent in 2012-2013 and 2.5 percent in 2013-2014 due to the stabilizing of the real estate market. Elimination of redevelopment agencies (RDA) is projected to save the General Fund $2.1 billion in 2012-2013, $1.1 billion in 2013-2014 and $1 billion ongoing. The greater initial savings are a result of a one-time distribution of unencumbered funds being held in various RDA funds and accounts. Enterprise zone regulatory reform is forecasted to increase General Fund revenue by $10 million in 2012-2013 and $50 million in 2013-2014.

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. has proposed a “live within its means” state budget for 2013-2014. If the projections and assumptions play out as planned, it will be the first time in decades that California has a balanced budget.

In announcing his proposed plan, the Governor said his budget would be adequately financed with existing general tax revenues and conclude the fiscal year with a billion-dollar reserve.

Nonpartisan Legislative Analyst Mac Taylor generally agreed that the state’s “underlying expenditures and revenues are roughly in balance,” but pointed to uncertainties (also acknowledged by the Governor) due to federal fiscal issues that might have an impact on state revenues.

The Governor’s proposal achieves balance by:

- using the tax increases voters approved in November 2012 with Proposition 30 (more taxes for upper-income taxpayers, retroactive to the beginning of 2012 and a billion-dollar tax increase on certain multistate corporations);
- substantial spending cuts in ongoing programs; and
- more revenues from a forecast of “modest” economic growth.

Budget Highlights

- No new general taxes, but some reforms to the state’s enterprise zone tax incentives;
- Expanded coverage in the Medi-Cal program to implement the federal health care act;
- Continued debt reduction; and
- A plan to invest in infrastructure while relying less on bonds.

Following is a closer look at specific areas of the Governor’s budget plan. Fees continue to be significant funding sources in a number of areas.

Environment

Based on the budget summary, the administration will be suggesting more activity in environmental areas this spring.

The Governor plans to recommend potential funding mechanisms to provide communities with access to safe drinking water. This could include fees on industry sectors deemed to contribute to drinking water pollution.

Also proposed is streamlining the fee system that funds the state Department of Toxic Substances Control because the current structure provides inconsistent revenue and has led to program reductions.

The Governor also will propose reforms to the beverage container recycling fund in the spring to help address fraud, review program operations and secure funding to support the long-term viability of the recycling program.

In the wake of the first carbon auction, held in November 2012, the budget addresses the expenditure of only $200 million in auction proceeds for 2012-2013 and $400 million in 2013-2014. The spending plan for AB 32 (climate change act) auction proceeds will be addressed in the May revise.

Health Care

The Governor’s proposal devotes a substantial increase of funds to implement the federal Affordable Care Act. Specifically, the plan devotes about $350 million to expand coverage in the Medi-Cal program to indigent adults and certain low-income families. The administration also is working on a new state-county partnership to implement the expansion of Medi-Cal eligibility.

Labor/Employment

Of interest in the labor/employment area of the budget are proposals for:

- Enhanced data sharing between the Franchise Tax Board (FTB) and the Employment Development Department (EDD), which is projected to increase revenues by $2 million as a result of increased payroll taxes, including increased penalties and $649,000 in interest.

- Eliminating the July 1, 2013 sunset for employer assessments that help fund the Labor Enforcement Compliance Fund, which conducts audits and investigations for unfair work conditions.

- Redirecting $2.5 million from the General Fund that normally goes to workers’ safety and labor enforcement to the compliance fund to ensure prevailing wages are being paid in public projects. This redirection will be backfilled to the labor and enforcement compliance monitoring fund through employer assessments, possibly a sign that higher assessments are coming.

- Funding the compliance monitoring fund (currently operating at a deficit) for prevailing wages through “cost recovery” from other sources that support public work projects, and a $5 million loan from the Targeted Inspection and Consultation Unit, also known as the high-hazard inspection program.

- An increase to the Workers’ Compensation Administration Revolving Fund of $152.9 million, supporting 82 positions to implement the recent reforms and fund the new Special Earnings Loss Supplementation program.

Judicial/Legal Reform

The budget plan proposes a $200 million cut in allocations for the trial courts. It’s to be patched through a $200 million loan from the “Immediate and Critical Needs Account,” which is supposed to be used only for court construction and renovation. The borrowing of this money will delay planned construction on courthouses, except the Long Beach Courthouse. For that project, there will be an increase of $34.8 million in the Immediate and Critical Needs Account.

Also referenced in the budget proposal is a reduced workload for the courthouses through statutory changes and more administrative resolutions.

Tax

A closer look at the tax-specific areas of the budget proposal reveals an increase of $152 million to the FTB to continue the Enterprise Data to Revenue Project — including 184 new positions within the FTB. The project modernizes the FTB to make more information and tax-related functions available online. So far, the

The Legislative Analyst said the Governor’s “emphasis on fiscal discipline and paying off the state’s accumulated budgetary debts is commendable, especially in light of the risks and pressures that the state still faces.”

Among those pressures are uncertainties related to the federal debt discussions, which the Legislative Analyst described as “the key forecast risk now.”

Not only do you physically move families’ most treasured possessions, commercial equipment or (soon) electronic documents, but every day you move emotions. That’s right – your thoughts, words and actions impact you, your team and your customers. By embracing the following truths, you’ll ensure that your emotions will serve to improve your relationships – and your revenue.

Turn emotion into motion. Spending emotional energy worrying about upcoming legislation, your competition or a bad Yelp! review isn’t going to move you any closer to your goals. Nor am I suggesting you stick your head in the sand and ignore reality. But when you find yourself ruminating or wasting mind time on anything you can’t directly control, it’s time to stop thinking and start doing. Lower your stress by turning emotion into motion. Concerned about bandit movers? Look for opportunities to educate your customers through articles, blogs or mailings. Role-play with your team and show them how to educate customers to protect themselves. Next time you find yourself stewing, stop and ask, “What action can I take, or what plan can I make that will give me a sense of control?” Go do it.

Go through the emotions with employees. As owners, we often get comfortable going through the everyday motions and forgetting to engage the emotions of our team. Research shows when people are emotionally invested in your success as well? Do you know how they prefer to be rewarded? Do you know their partner’s name or if they have children, and if so, do you ask how they’re doing? Do you stop long enough to show appreciation through specific, genuine feedback, rather than a quick “thanks a lot”? Do you continue to share your vision and stories so they become emotionally invested in your success as well?

How Well Do You Move Emotions?

Convention Speakers to Coach CMSA Members on “Exiting the Comfort Zone”

2013 is the year for CMSA members to consider “Exiting the Comfort Zone,” – which is the theme for our 95th Annual Convention May 14 through 19 at the Fess Parker’s DoubleTree Resort in Santa Barbara, Calif. This year’s theme encourages attendees to think outside of the box and develop new business relations. To help Mover members in this endeavor, the 2013 Convention will provide up-to-date information on issues affecting the moving industry, offer new networking opportunities with suppliers and exploring business diversification strategies for 2013.

The Convention kicks off with the CMSA’s Executive Committee meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday night will be the Movers and Shakers Reception and Dinner – which is an invitation-only event for CMSA Board Members, Chapter Presidents and Committee Members. The Movers and Shakers Reception will be sponsored by Gateways International, Inc., and the dinner will be sponsored by TransGuard General Insurance Co. of America.

On Wednesday, the CMSA standing committees (Insurance Committee, Government Affairs Committee, Membership Committee and Military Affairs Committee) and the Association’s Board of Directors will convene throughout the day. Attendees are welcome to sit-in and learn about industry news during these meetings. The registration desk will open this day, and attendees can begin picking up their registration packets and event tickets. Convention Exhibitors will also have an opportunity to set up their booths early between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.

On Thursday, CMSA members will showcase their golfing talents at the Glen Annie Golf Club for the CMSA Annual Golf Tournament, sponsored by Pioneer. The golf tournament will start with its shotgun at 9:00 a.m. with a $10,000 hole-in-one prize on the ninth hole, sponsored by TransGuard General Insurance Co. of America. For Exhibitors who don’t golf, the ballroom will be open for them to prepare their booths from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. before the Exhibitors Welcome Reception.

No matter your business, you’re in the business of selling. We know that people make buying decisions emotionally and back up their decisions with logic. We know that people do business with those they like and trust. So, if you want people to do business with you, you must be able to tap into their emotions in a positive way. Do your physical moves, the person in billing and the individual who answers your phone know they are salespeople? They may think they’re in the business of providing a service, but in truth, each member of your company is a vital part of your sales team due to their everyday interactions with your customers. As their fearless leader, are you providing them with the insight, training and encouragement necessary to engage your customers?

Also, how emotionally appealing is your website’s content? Realize that these days women account for 85 percent of all consumer purchases, and 75 percent of women identify themselves as the primary shoppers for their households. Even higher percentages use the Internet for product information before making a purchase. Yet 91 percent of women say that advertisers don’t understand them. And if advertisers—in the business to get consumers to part with their hard-earned cash—don’t, my question is, do you know how to best emotionally engage your female buyers?

Join me at this year’s 95th Annual CMSA Convention to gain the skills and strategies to move emotions to increase your market share and results! that understands its role in the sales process. We must share plans and goals for our teams to work toward as well as a process for recognizing achievements when goals are reached. We don’t have to over-complicate the road to success; instead, just share your expectations with your staff so they feel as if they are pooling their efforts toward a targeted direction.

Having nearly made all my rounds to our CMSA chapters, one thing has struck me deeply about the CMSA members I meet with. I can see that your businesses are not only an important part of your communities by providing the highly needed services to those residents, but so many of you are the very fiber that makes your communities so special. In speaking with many of you, it is clear that your roots run deep into the history of your respective business locations. All this fosters a passion to serve those which you call your own (your communities). As I listened to you describe your memories of growing up in those cities and towns, it was clear to me that those places were home to you for many reasons. Many of you were so kind to invite me into both your business world as well as your personal world by letting me tour your facilities and social clubs. It is moments like these that have given me a deeper appreciation for CMSA; those memories will be the very thing I take away from my experience as your Chairman.

I will close by saying we are truly fortunate to have a group of Associate members who support not only our chapters, but, more importantly, our day-to-day operations. Our companies depend on that support as we set forth to serve our customers. We could not deliver the level of service we all strive for on every move without such support. When called upon to support a chapter event, our Associate members respond with “when” and “where,” followed by their gift of participation. I would love to name each and every one of them in this column for their tireless efforts to support not only CMSA, but, more importantly, our day-to-day operations. Our companies depend on that support as we set forth to serve our customers. We could not deliver the level of service we all strive for on every move without such support. When called upon to support a chapter event, our Associate members respond with “when” and “where,” followed by their gift of participation. I would love to name each and every one of them in this column for their tireless efforts to support our organizations and our Association. We, in turn, should thank them whenever possible by bringing opportunity their way. Clearly, there is no better way to thank them than by providing our support.

January 31, 2013, ended a second year of the California Air Resources Board (CARB) reporting deadline for all On-Road Diesel Engines operating in California. This process is one that caught some carriers by surprise and left several wondering if they needed to report. My perspective is that CARB, like many regulators, has done a less-than adequate job of outreach to the impacted industry. I have little faith that a company that is not aligned with an Association like CMSA would have enough knowledge to proceed with compliance prior to a costly ... you have reported your fleet if you are taking advantage of any fleet options or have printed out a certificate of compliance for your van line to expedite a possible roadside inspection. There are more CARB deadlines ahead, and recent events have me thinking of the impact on small fleets; this class includes contractors, which are vital to our industry. Small fleets (one to three diesel trucks) that have taken advantage of delays as a result of their reporting to CARB will be required by January 1, 2014, to install an expensive PM filter costing up to $18,000 on one of their trucks or replace their truck(s) with a compliant unit(s). The question that we all need to ask is: What will be the impact of this deadline on our fleets and van line capacity? Transportation in general, and our industry in particular, faces a shortage of drivers. Issues related to CARB regulations, changes in the Hours of Service (HOS) rules and implementation of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration’s Compliance, Safety, Accountability (CSA) program only exacerbates an already difficult challenge. Freight has advantages in hiring over moving for several reasons: the work is less physically demanding, the learning curve is much shorter, and greater volume and turnover has helped to increase hiring efficiencies. With AMSA taking the lead, I am pleased to report that CMSA is also a participant in working to address the driver shortage issue. AMSA has provided SOSC’s gold medal floor hockey team with a trip of a lifetime, competing at the Special Olympics Winter Games in Korea (January 30 – February 5). It also allows “the organization to grow and offer more life changing opportunities at no cost for all of our athletes from San Diego north to Bakersfield and San Luis Obispo, and the thousands more who haven’t yet experienced what Special Olympics Southern California has to offer,” said Bill Shumard, President and CEO of SOSC. From competition, training programs, and venue rentals to coaches, sporting equipment, uniforms, transportation costs or even meals at competitions, thousands of SOSC athletes will benefit from this campaign.

If you can’t tell, February has a way of spreading LOVE IN THE AIR, whether it is through gentle reminders or that more in-your-face marketing by retailers with their displays of candies, flowers, cards and who knows what else! How we choose to celebrate Valentine’s Day with our loved ones is a personal choice for each of us. While I too will succumb to some of the marketing tactics that appear everywhere I go, I will also try to find a creative way to show my family that I love them. That gift might come in the way of spending time with them on a simple bike ride, a trip to the movies or even a long walk on the beach without the cell phone. My point is this: Sometimes it takes more than money to show our love. It might be just giving someone the gift of time. More often than not, we know that a strong, stable family life means a strong, stable business life. We know that the key to happiness is finding a way to bring a sense of balance to our life. Often, sadly, I am not the poster child for such balance. It does take a focused effort to avoid becoming too absorbed at times with our work if we aren’t careful. So, however you choose to celebrate Valentine’s Day, make sure that you do it with a true spirit of love for those whom you love.

As we progress into 2013, I’ve noticed a surprisingly steady flow of calls coming into our sales department, requesting moving quotes for all our business lines, which is truly refreshing during the traditionally slow winter months. I recently returned from a three-chapter swing around our state where I had the chance to meet with many CMSA members, who reported positive financial results for 2012. The hope all around is that we see a continued growth in business for those of us striving to achieve the goals we set forth for 2013. We can finally feel as if the recent economic challenges are now behind us. It is now time to set our sights on moving forward with confidence that we are on the way to an economic upswing for most U.S. businesses.

As I met with each chapter, I spoke of the need to have a strong sales plan, and a team that provides opportunities for qualified candidates with experience in selling local and National Account services, including commercial O&I, warehousing and distribution, and global household goods. Interested candidates should contact Mike Dahl, General Manager — call 510-497-2362 or email mdahl@smoving.com.

The CMSA Convention, being held at the Fess Parker’s DoubleTree Resort in Santa Barbara, is a once-a-year opportunity for our membership to meet as a group and discuss the issues involving our industry. Located directly across from the Pacific Ocean, the Convention site is the perfect place to bring our families to relax and have some fun as we prepare for the coming summer season.

This year’s Convention theme is “Exiting the Comfort Zone.” The economy of the past few years demonstrated to many that if we are going to be successful, then we must be willing to exit our “comfort zones” and seek new business. With a van line panel discussion, a military breakout session and numerous networking opportunities, you will not want to miss this Convention. Whether you plan on playing in the CMSA golf tournament, spending the day at the beach or meeting with our Associate members at the Exhibitors Welcome Reception, there is something for everyone at this year’s Convention. For many of us, this Convention will be the last break until the end of summer. Mark the days on your calendar, and join me and my family at the 95th Annual CMSA Convention in Santa Barbara.
